U.S. NOW ON VIRTUAL WAR BASIS

ROUGH DAYS ARE AHEAD

Our Freedom In Danger, President Tells America

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—Swift mobilization of all American manpower and resources today follows President Truman's grim warning last night that Russia has pushed the world "to the brink of a general war" and that "the future of civilization depends on what we do."

The President told every American that he must pay higher taxes, work longer hours, produce more and get along with fewer luxuries because "our freedom is in danger."

Solemn and grim-faced, the President told millions of Americans by radio and television: "Our homes, our nation, all the things we believe in, are in great danger. This danger has been created by the rulers of the Soviet Union."

"The future of civilization depends on what we do—on what we do now, and in the months ahead."

In a last-minute insertion in his address, the President declared the wildcat railroad strike is a "danger to the security of our nation." He called upon the union and its striking members to return to work immediately. They were complying this morning.

MR. TRUMAN spoke of hopes for peace, despite the grimness of his message, and asserted he does not believe war "is inevitable."

But he declared: "We will not engage in appeasement."

"We are willing to negotiate differences, but we will not yield to aggression. Appeasement of evil is not the road to peace."

The chief executive pledged the U. S. to fight to defend the principles of the United Nations in Korea, and elsewhere.

He said "Europe and the rest of the world are also in great danger" of Communist attack and that Secretary of State Acheson and representatives of the other North Atlantic Treaty Nations will immediately complete plans for a joint army, navy and air force "to defend Europe."

"The defense of Europe," he said, "is of the utmost importance to the security of the United States."

It is possible, the President said, for the free world and the Soviet Union to negotiate on their "legitimate interests," and even reach a peaceful answer to Korea. But he added that the lesson of Munich is that "security cannot be bought with appeasement."

Citing the increases in the armed forces already achieved and those still in blueprints, Mr. Truman declared:

"We have a large Navy. We have a powerful Airforce. We have units around which a strong Army can be built. But measured against the danger that confronts us, our forces are not adequate."

HE SAID THAT for the sake of the nation's survival "we must set very high targets and be willing to make an all-out effort to reach them."

"Workers," the President added, "will be called upon to work more hours. More women and more young people and older workers will be needed in our plants and factories. Farmers will have to set higher production goals. Businessmen will have to put all their know-how to work to increase production."

"In the days ahead each of us should measure his own efforts, his own sacrifices by the standard of our heroic men in Korea."

Mr. Truman told the American people that not only is "our freedom in danger" but that the nation is faced with a historic responsibility.

He said:

"We must remember that we are the leaders of the free world. We must understand that we cannot achieve peace by ourselves, but only by cooperating with other free nations."

The President outlined these belt-tightening moves on the homefront:

1. Price controls "at once" on many materials and products essential to defense and to hold the line on living costs.

2. Stabilizing of wages.

3. Setting up of a system of "fair standards" for prices and wages where mandatory controls are not imposed. The President said "the chiselers will not be allowed to get by" and violations will hasten imposition of mandatory controls and roll-backs in prices and wages.

4. CUTBACKS in "many lines of civilian production" to provide the essential materials for defense, with expanded production of steel, copper, aluminum, electric power, and food.

5. Higher taxes to put the defense program "as nearly as possible on a pay-as-you-go basis." The President will soon hand Congress a drastic new tax bill.

6. Federal spending for non-defense purposes will be sharply slashed.

7. More women, young people and older people will be needed in defense plants. All workers will be called upon to work longer hours and produce more.

8. The defense effort "will require us to make a lot of changes in our ordinary ways of doing things."

Mr. Truman accused Soviet Russian rulers with trying to "undermine or overwhelm the free nations, one by one." He asserted that this is the real meaning of the Korean conflict and the reason "why we are in such grave danger."

PROMOTED to rank of captain in the U. S. Airforce is Donald G. Jackson of Circleville. He is a jet fighter pilot assigned to the 91st Interceptor Squadron, Larson Airforce Base, Washington.

Red Snub Expected

Answer On Korean Situation Booked

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 16—

The Chinese Communist delegation will make an important announcement late this afternoon and this is expected to be a flat rejection of the United Nations request for a cease fire in Korea.

The Chinese Communists refused to make any disclosure, but informed UN circles said that their price for peace in the Korean peninsula will comprise the following:

1—Withdrawal of United Nations forces from Korea.

2—Withdrawal of the United States Seventh Fleet from Formosan waters.

3—The ouster of the Chinese Nationalists from the UN and the admission of the Peiping government.

Disclosure of the impending announcement was made last night after Gen. Wu Hsiu-chuan, Chief Chinese Communist spokesman at the UN, conferred privately with UN Secretary General Trygve Lie.

AN AIDE TO WU later said that the Communists will offer a full review on all issues pertaining to the Korean conflict and the topics discussed with Lie.

Wu did not attempt to communicate with the assembly's three-man truce committee. It is comprised of Assembly President Nasrollah Entezam of Iran, Foreign Secretary Lester B. Pearson of Canada and Sir Benegal Rau of India, who officially notified Wu that the world organization seeks a cease fire in Korea at the earliest possible moment.

The notification was sent to the Chinese Communist headquarters in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York.

Rau, who was the moving force in the cease fire program, was delegated to make the first personal contact with Wu in behalf of the truce committee.

It is understood that the group's strategy will be formulated after Rau has had a talk with Wu. It will necessarily have to take into consideration Wu's scheduled statement this afternoon.

'Do It Day' Set For Monday

Circleville is being urged to join in the statewide "Do It Day" observance scheduled for Monday.

Monday has been proclaimed as the day in which persons are asked to mail their contributions to the Pickaway County Health and Tuberculosis Association for Christmas seals.

Mayor Thurman I. Miller Friday urged Circleville residents to join in the program and to have their contributions mailed by Monday.

President Issues Emergency Order As Reds Threaten

Office Of Defense Mobilization To Be Headed By GE Chieftain

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—President Truman today proclaimed a national emergency and created the Office of Defense Mobilization to place the nation on a virtual war basis to meet the "great" danger of a general Soviet attack.

Mr. Truman signed the national emergency proclamation at 10:20 a. m. (EST). This action was followed within minutes by an executive order creating the super agency to supervise the nation's mobilization program.

The ODM will be headed by Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric.

The emergency proclamation declared the move was necessary to meet "the increasing menace of the forces of Communist aggression."

In the document, the President charged Communist imperialism with designs for "world conquest" and said U. S. defense forces must be strengthened "as speedily as possible to the end that we may be able to repel any and all threats" to American security.

THE FUNCTION of the giant new defense mobilization agency will be to produce arms for a 3,500,000-man armed force, supervise economic controls, and convert the U. S. into an "arsenal for the defense of freedom."

The first governmental actions under the new setup are expected to be price-wage controls on a part of the economy—mostly materials and products needed for the planned rapid expansion of the defense program.

The President called on all citizens of America to make sacrifices and a supreme effort to back up the nation's defense effort.

The presidential proclamation immediately gave the President extraordinary executive powers.

It started the wheels turning on a gigantic rearming program that will channel the nation's economy to a large extent from production of civilian goods to the weapons, planes, tanks, guns and atomic bombs needed to defend the U. S. and other free nations.

The President said: "Now, therefore, I, Harry S. Truman, President of the United States of America, do proclaim the existence of a national emergency, which requires that the military, naval, air, and civilian defenses of this country be strengthened as speedily as possible to the end that we may be able to repel any and all threats against our national security and to fulfill our responsibilities in the efforts being made through the United Nations and otherwise to bring about lasting peace."

MR. TRUMAN expressed confidence that the U. S. "will meet the dangers that confront us with courage and determination, strong in the faith that we can thereby secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

He addressed these words to every citizen in the land:

"I summon all citizens to make a united effort for the security and well-being of our beloved country and to place its needs foremost in thought and action that the full moral and material strength of the nation may be ready for the dangers which threaten us."

"I summon our farmers, our workers in industry, and our businessmen to make a mighty production effort to meet the defense requirements of the nation and to this end to eliminate all waste and inefficiency and to subordinate all lesser interests to the common good."

"I summon every person and every community to make, with a spirit of neighborliness, whatever sacrifices are necessary for the welfare of the nation."

"I summon all state and local leaders and officials to cooperate fully with the military and civilian defense agencies of the United States in the national defense agencies of the United States in the national defense program."

"I summon all citizens to be loyal to the principles upon which our nation is founded, to keep faith with our friends and allies, and to be firm in our devotion to the peaceful purposes to which the United Nations was founded."

The President warned that if Communist imperialism's goal should be achieved the U. S. could not survive as a free nation.

Mr. Truman declared:

"World conquest by Communist imperialism is the goal of the forces of aggression that have been loosed upon the world."

"Recent events in Korea and elsewhere constitute a grave threat to the peace of the world and imperil the efforts of this country and those of the United Nations to prevent aggression and armed conflict."

"The increasing menace of the forces of Communist aggression requires that the national defense of the United States be strengthened as speedily as possible."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—Striking railroad workers are returning to work today after a direct appeal by President Truman and the Postoffice Department is preparing to lift its partial embargo on Christmas mail.

Crews of switchmen reported back in operating strength at the Chicago and Washington terminals. However, rail tie-ups were still reported in Birmingham, Nashville and Knoxville.

A Postoffice spokesman indicated that the embargo on parcel post mail may be lifted shortly. He said the department is getting reports from its divisions throughout the nation and is "very anxious" to remove the ban.

W. P. Kennedy, president of the Brotherhood of Railway

A window in Circleville Postoffice will be open from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m. Sunday, Postmaster A. Hulse Hays said Saturday. Second class greeting cards are now being accepted and lifting of embargo was awaited on parcel post mail.

Trainmen, directed the "wildcat" strikers early this morning to report for work on a promise that "a settlement is in sight."

An end of the walkout eliminates the log-jam created at truck points on 18 lines which has held up tons of vital supplies for the Korean war effort and mountains of Christmas mail and packages.

In Chicago, a 25-car "solid mail" train bound for the West Coast with Christmas mail, was one of the first to pull out in restored service.

A few hours earlier, President Truman appealed to the patriotism of the rail workers in his address to the nation and urged them to return to their jobs and end a threat to the "security of the nation."

Million Men To Get Call

1952 Summons Almost As Large

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—One million Americans will go into uniform next year and almost another million will be called up in 1952 under President Truman's program to meet the "grave danger" of Soviet aggression.

As an initial step in troop mobilization, two National Guard infantry divisions are being alerted today for active service Jan. 16. They are the 31st (Alabama - Mississippi) and 47th (Minnesota-North Dakota).

Mr. Truman set the military manpower goal at about 3.5 million men with personnel drawn from the National Guard, Reserves and an accelerated draft rate.

Some two million men would be supplied by the standby units. Selective Service would furnish the rest. Draftees will serve for 24 months instead of the present 21.

A high Defense Department official said that approximately 800,000 replacements will be inducted each year after 1951 although the "plateau strength" of the armed forces will be reached about the middle of next year.

TO SUPPLEMENT manpower needs, the President ordered a commensurate increase in military production of planes, combat vehicles and electronics.

He explained that this upsurge would have to be achieved under a vastly-expanded program of longer working hours and full utilization of women and young people.

Mr. Truman said that within a year plane output would increase five-fold, combat vehicles, four, and electronics, 4.5.

This would bring plane production to 1,500 or 2,000 aircraft with about 100 light tanks rolling from the assembly lines each month. Congress has been asked to appropriate funds for about 4,000 tanks of all types.

Electronics information is secret, but some of this equipment will be used on ten vessels which are being converted to aircraft carriers and on other ships, planes and military devices.

Mr. Truman described the arms program as "an arsenal for the defense of freedom" from which other free nations can draw weapons to aid the Allied cause.

92 VOICES TO BE HEARD

Annual Christmas Vesper Is Due Sunday Afternoon

Circleville high school's 92-voice choir will present its annual Christmas vesper service at 4 p. m. Sunday in the high school auditorium.

This year's vesper service will be presented in two parts, featuring the talents of 19 soloists and ensemble group singers.

Director Truman Eberly said the first portion of the program will be "The Christmas Story" in scripture and song, while the second portion will consist of narratives and singing of the customs and carols of many lands.

Beverly Reid and James Bartholomew will be featured as narrators in the final portion of the program, while both also are to present individual performances during the first portion.

OTHERS TO BE featured as soloists during the vesper service are Nancy Waple, John Howard, Charles Magill and Roy Huffer.

In addition, two ensemble groups will be heard during the first portion of the program.

They are the girls' triple trio, composed of Margaret Green, Jacquie Smith, Nancy Waple, Theresa Hill, Dorothy Lampson, Eleanor Lewis, Beatrice Bass, Beverly Reid and Marjorie Thornton; and a special echo ensemble made up of Pat Peters, Phyllis Dresbach, Larry Thornton and Ralph Sterling.

Accompaniment throughout the program will be provided by Patty Shellhammer.

The program is to be opened with the group singing "Silent Night," followed by a narrative.

Tenors—Jim Bartholomew, Gary Cooper, Fred Cooper, Fred Gordon, John Howard, Roy Huffer, Bob Jones, Charles Magill, Larry Thornton and George Troutman.

Car-Bus Crash Kills 3 Men

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ky., Dec. 16—Kentucky state police today said three persons were killed in a head-on collision of an auto and a Greyhound bus which injured 21 others last night near Bedford, Ky.

Dead were James C. Chistain of Nashville and John T. Shivers and Richard O. Meadows, both of Detroit. All three were passengers in the car.

Police said the driver of the Louisville - Cincinnati - Detroit bus, Robert Foley of near Cincinnati, was in serious condition while 20 passengers received minor injuries.

Yank Warships Bombard UN Hungnam Beachhead

SEOUL, Dec. 16—Big guns of American warships roared into action today off the Hungnam beachhead to support United Nations troops battling elements of seven Chinese divisions driving down from the mountains of Northeast Korea.

Some fresh enemy attacks were reported as close as four miles to the port city of Hungnam, but a U. S. Tenth Corps spokesman said the "whole situation is being contained."

Other Allied troops battled Communist forces in the Chunchon area five miles south of the 38th Parallel toward which the Reds are moving down from the north in heavy strength.

Communist legions, probably including many Chinese, are swarming down frozen roads and over and through half frozen rivers in the direction of the artificial boundary line which formerly separated Red North Korea and Republican South Korea.

The heavy firepower of Allied warships was thrown against Chinese forces closing around the narrowing Hungnam beachhead as Red groups attempted to infiltrate into the port area itself but were repulsed.

MAIN ENEMY pressure in the Hungnam area continued from the northwest with one Red column of 1,000 men reported on the main road from Hukhuri to Hamhung.

This enemy buildup appeared headed for the town of Chiyong, six miles west of Hungnam. About fifty Reds already held the Chiyong rail junction.

An American platoon surrounded Friday fought its way back to safety Saturday.

Marine and Airforce planes bombed and strafed enemy personnel without letup in close support of the beleaguered beachhead troops.

Enemy camel trains for the first time were reported moving close to the parallel. MacArthur's headquarters was chary of drawing any conclusions from the sighting of camels so close to the parallel but it is known that only the Chinese have used camels for transport in the Korean war.

New Idle Pay Claims Zoom In November

An increase has been noted in the number of new and continued claims for unemployment compensation filed by Pickaway County in November.

According to Mary Wolf, local Bureau of Unemployment Compensation clerk, 117 new claims were filed last month, compared to only 62 in October.

"We find continued claims jumped from 211 in October to 347 in November," Miss Wolf said. "Normal seasonal declines in farming, canning and construction jobs accounted for a large percent of the increase in the claims load."

The local BUC office was visited by 1,356 persons in November. The month before visits totaled 1,002.

Last month the office made 28 placements in local industry, 10 of these being agricultural.

C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, made 24 employer visits during November.

Little Ashville Gives 73 Pints To Bloodmobile

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile visited Circleville's little neighbor to the north—Ashville—Friday afternoon.

When the unit headed back toward Columbus, it carried with it 73 pints of blood. A total of 82 persons registered, nine being rejected because they had eaten a fatty meal that day.

This figure amounts to more than the Bloodmobile collected in Circleville in its last four trips and more than half of the entire Pickaway County quota for January.

The Bloodmobile will make an attempt to secure some blood Jan. 26 when it is next due in Circleville. The quota then will be 144 pints. Last stop here, the Bloodmobile collected not a single pint.

Iceman Should Never Have Left
 PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16—Talk about the iceman cometh—he never should have left.

At least as it applies to Carlo Fanesa, 55-year-old West Philadelphia iceman. While he was attending a meeting last night, burglars entered his home and stole $7,000 in cash savings. Fanesa told police the money was in $5, $10 and $20 bills.

Unsigned 'Crank' Letters Irking Humane Officer

Pickaway County Humane Officer Ralph Wallace launched a complaint against complainants Friday.

The dog warden said his complaint was against persons who write to him complaining about other people's pets and then fail to sign their names.

"Sometimes I receive letters saying that a person is mistreating his dog or cat or that the animal is creating a disturbance," Wallace said.

"I have to deal with them as crank letters unless the person signs his name so that I know he just doesn't have personal grievance against the owner."

The warden said he checks on most of the letters but is unable to tell whether the sender is serious unless he signs his name to the complaint.

Two Major Rites Set For Sunday In First EUB

Two major services are to be held Sunday in First Evangelical United Brethren church.

Unified worship service upon the theme of "Christmas Pathways" will be held beginning at 9:30 a. m., while a Christmas
cantata, "The Music of Bethlehem," will be presented at 8
p. m.

During morning worship, Miss Pat Nau will play "Chimes at Christmas" at the organ.

Church School Superintendent
Edwin Richardson will give the call to worship, offer the prayer
of invocation and lead the congregation in the affirmation of faith, "The Apostle's Creed."

The congregation will sing the hymn "O Come, All Ye Faithful," after which Rev. Wilson will give the pastoral prayer.

Fidelis Chorus will sing the anthem, "Christmas Bells are Ringing." Miss Nau will play,
"Christmas Meditation" and
"March."

The congregational closing hymn will be "As With Gladness Men of Old."

Sunday school will study "Victorious Daily Living," with classes for all ages meeting in individual rooms. Classes will re-assemble in the sanctuary for a closing exercise, after which the pastor will conduct a fellowship of prayer.

Members of the church will conduct services in the two local home and hospital organizations at 2:30 p. m. and 3 p. m. with the Rev. Mr. Wilson bringing a Christmas message. Misses Virginia and Leona Wise will furnish special music.

"The Music of Bethlehem," a two part Christmas cantata, will be presented by the First Evangelical United Brethren church Fidelis Chorus at 8 p. m. Sunday.

The Rev. Carl L. Wilson will direct the congregational worship in prayer and scripture;
"Joys to the Lord." Miss Pat
Nau will offer the prelude,
"Christmas Medley Overtures."
The chorus will processional to the humming strains of "Silent Night," after which the cantata will begin.

Selections of the cantata are "Behold I Bring You Good Tidings of Great Joy," "Shepherds Their Watch Were Keeping," "Arise and Shine, For the Light is Come," "Whom Seek Ye, Lowly Shepherds?" "Joy to the World; The Lord is Come," "Holy Baby, Slumber Now. In Thy Manger Bed," "Christmas Bells Are Ringing, Blessed Tidings Bringing," "Hallelujah!"

Highroads Of Universe

By DR. J. GLOVER JOHNSON
Professor of Religion
Marietta College

Our brief look at the principles of psychology during recent weeks has shown us that in the effort to achieve harmony between the subconscious and the conscious self, no stimuli should be brought within the experience of the individual which will give him the feeling that he is inferior to any other individual.

A feeling of inferiority produces sensitiveness which, in turn, produces unwholesome introspection and loneliness. The resultant retreat from reality—
because "dissatisfaction is painful"—develops within the "suffering" individual an "inferiority complex." This "complex" tends to dominate the individual's entire outlook on life.

The "superiority complex" is equally defeating to social progress. In this case the individual in both attitude and behavior
seeks to dominate other individuals. Arrogance tends to become the life-spirit and social harmony, in his eyes, does not even seem desirable.

A wholesome social order demands individuals and groups who do not have such "complexes." The logical deduction from all of this is that the way by which the individual achieves the feeling of being well-coordinated

'God With Us' Is Theme For Presbyterians

"God With Us" is the title of the advent sermon which the Rev. Donald Mitchell will preach in Presbyterian church this Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell states:
The original text is found in the book of Isaiah, chapter 7, where in it is made quite clear that God, not the Assyrian king, will save His people; and that any aliances with the enemies of God's people will bring nothing but disaster.

"Thus the record of the birth
of Jesus referring back to Isaiah, (742 B. C., uses the name Immanuel, for the Christ child,
meaning God With Us."

During the worship service,
the choir will sing, "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling" and
the congregation will sing the hymns "O Come All Ye Faithful," "It Came Upon The Midnight Clear" and "Silent Night, Holy Night."

At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L.
Huston will play "Christmas
Pastorale," "Jesu Bambino" and
"In Dulci Jubilo."

Preceding worship, an hour
of Bible study will begin at 9:30
a. m. The newly formed Men's Bible Class will meet in the chapel.

Cradle and nursery service is provided for parents wishing to bring children for the hour of worship.

In the evening at 6:30 p. m.
the Westminster Fellowship will serve a supper with parents and families as guests. A program of carols and Christmas tableaux will be presented. Devotions will be led by Hal Spencer, sponsor
of the group; Elizabeth Musser
will play the prelude.

Services in preparation for Christmas will be held in Trinity Lutheran church at 10:15
a. m. Sunday.

The Rev. George L. Troutman has selected for his sermon
theme "Let Us Put Christ Into Christmas."

At this service, three persons will become affiliated with the Church by means of transfer.
Mrs. Lizete Eichenbergs and daughter, Mrs. Donera Petersons, formerly displaced persons in Europe, will be received from the Latvian Lutheran church and Mrs. Ira Harrington will be received from Hope Lutheran church of Columbus.

In connection with the morning service, the junior choir will present the Christmas cantata,
"The Manger of Bethlehem,"
which consists of the eight parts.
They are: The Christ is born;
the weary world is waiting;
the manger of Bethlehem; holy memories; fling wide the gates of praise; over the desert; sleep, babe so holy; and now is come salvation.

Included in these parts are two male-chorus numbers and special solos and duets which will be taken by the following singers: Peggy Andrews; James Bartholomew; Margaret Dres-
bach; Ruth Grubb; John Howard; Donna Kerns; Carol Leist; Marlene Mancini; Betty Matz; Marilyn Radcliff; Linda Storts; Ruth Troutman; Patricia Valentine; and Carolyn Weller.

Sunday has also been designated by the church council as "catch-up Sunday."

Sunday school classes will meet in the parish house at 9
a. m.

2,000 Expected To Attend Youth Movement Meet

OXFORD, Dec. 16—Nearly 2, 000 students from 706 colleges and universities in all of the 48 states will come to Miami university during the Christmas holidays to attend the fourth national assembly of the Student Christian Association Movement.

The group will meet on the Miami campus from Dec. 27 to Jan. 2, inclusive. It will mark the third time the assembly will have been held at Miami, others having been held here in 1937 and 1941.

Dr. Kirtley F. Mather, professor of geology at Harvard university, will be one of the speakers. He is chairman of the committee on religion in higher education.

Other speakers will include the Rev. Stephen C. Neill, Cambridge, England, associate general secretary of the World Council of Churches; Vera Micheles Dean, director of the research department of the Foreign Policy Association, and Rev. Joseph King, pastor of Oberlin First Congregational church.

Most of Ohio's many colleges will send representatives. Dick Sims, of Ohio State university, is transportation chairman for the Midwest region.

Solos, Duet To Be Heard By Methodists

"Christmas Listening" will be the sermon theme presented Sunday in First Methodist church
by the Rev. Robert Weaver during a "see you in church Sunday" service.

Special music will be a feature of the service, containing the anthem "Holy Lord God" and
"Carol of the Shepherd."

Mrs. Ray Friend and Miss Beverly Reid are to present a duet entitled "Gesu Bambino"
during the service, while Ray
Friend and Mrs. Vaden Couch will present solos during the singing of "Holy Night, Peaceful Night."

Children of the Sunday school
are to present a special program at 7:30 p. m. Sunday in the church. The service will be directed by Superintendent
W. Earl Hilyard.

Christmas Play To Be Presented

A Christmas play entitled
"Christmas Everywhere" will be presented at 7:30 p. m. Sunday in Pilgrim Holiness church, Haywood avenue.

A total of 53 young people of the church are to participate in the program, directed by Mrs.
Paul Seymour, Mrs. Alonzo Hill
and Mrs. Ruth Davis.

The play is designed to portray how each country should worship Christ.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

"Shall I give my date a Christmas gift? If so, what?" ask letters from high school boys.

It's up to you. If you date her only once in a while, a friendly card is the etiquette-approved way to send holiday greetings.
If she's the one you like best and want to give her something small but nice, keep it rather impersonal, something to read or use, because things to wear aren't considered good taste.

If she's your steady date, your gifts can be a little more personal, but not expensive or lavish. Steer clear of jewelry and clothes, says etiquette. One of the following is within reach of your allowance (if you save or work a little) and will make you a hero in her starry eyes:

To use—A little velvet, gold or silvery evening bag. A "jewel-elled" lipstick. A shining "gold" compact. A "gold" box for bobby pins. A gay-colored billfold or snapshot folder. A diary. A pretty plastic comb and brush set. Fragrant bath set of cologne, powder, etc. Bubble Bath.
White woolly mittens with embrodery or spangles for dates.

To read—Books that are famous classics that everybody should read and likes to own.
Book stores and teachers will help you choose one she'll like.

Perfume—Light flower scents
by well-known makers.
Records by her favorite band.
A record holder. Pretty stationery or note paper.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—II Corinthians 11:16-33; 12:7-10; Philippians 3:4-11; II Timothy 4; James 1:2-4.

By Alfred J. Buescher

To defend himself from those who would supplant him in leadership, Paul wrote to the Corinthians to tell of his sufferings in the cause of Christ. "Thrice was
I beaten with rods," he wrote.

"Once was I stoned," Paul wrote to the church at Corinth; "thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep; in journeyings often in peril of waters, in peril of robbers."

"In weakness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness; besides those things which cometh upon
me daily, the care of the churches."

Also Paul told of the time when he was threatened with capture by authorities,
"and through a window in a basket was I let down by the wall, and escaped."

MEMORY VERSE—James 1:2-3.

SHAME OF A NATION

IF THERE is a single person in the United States who does not feel a measure of shame because of the Korean debacle, he is not worthy of citizenship in a free land.

Sorrow and regret for the boys dying in Korea is universal, but they are separate emotions from those which have placed a burden upon the heart of every loyal American, as he views the situation in which this nation finds itself because of failure in leadership.

Five years ago a pair of bombs was dropped upon key cities in Japan, bringing to an abrupt end a war that had lasted for years. The whole world was impressed by the destruction wrought by this new and terrible weapon.

We Americans became very proud of ourselves, stuck out our national chest and did considerable strutting. With the A-bomb we were in control of the world. No other nation would have the temerity to as much as make an ugly face at the United States, now that the United States had the means of blasting any enemy from the face of the earth.

The government destroyed or dismantled the strongest military force in history. There was a race between Washington and Moscow—to see whether Washington could destroy facilities which guaranteed national security faster than the reds could build the biggest armed force ever known.

This country had the bomb, and it still has it, although the secrets of its manufacture were stolen by Russian spies. But apparently use of the bomb would be of no help in Korea, where general military strength is needed.

The United States is in its present predicament because it followed blindly those who promised security but gave the nation cheap politics instead.

PARTY MUST BE SERVED

SEVERAL months ago it was announced the government would build a large hydrogen bomb plant in the heart of the Ozarks in northern Arkansas or southern Missouri. It was pointed out the plant would be located in the interior of the country, safe from possible attack from either coast. It would not be possible, it was declared, for an enemy plane to penetrate that far into the interior, or to inflict important damage on this important facility.

But the plans have been changed, and instead of being located in this comparatively safe region the plant is to be built in the Savannah Valley, only minutes by air from the Atlantic Coast. The proposed plant would be an easy target for enemy bombers.

Why the change? Politics. The administration is making every effort to woo the support of Southern Democrats. Locating a great plant, employing thousands of men, might help to put the administration back in favor. Party must be served at all cost.

These Days

The mails are growing heavier; Christmas cards are beginning to arrive. Cartons and packages clutter the inner rooms of the house and in a day or two, all sorts of colored paper and tinsel and fanciful tapes will appear. It is just before Christmas.

But what is this holiday, for which such magnificent preparations are being made? Is it the gift-giving day set apart as a convenience? Is it a day to notify forgotten friends and relatives that their names remain on a list for once-a-year attention? Or is it the anniversary of the birth of Christ?

I found a curious comment on this subject by Harry L. Lurie, executive director, Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds. He writes:

"It is exceedingly doubtful whether the various religious sects and denominations which exist in this country can remain immune to the general cultural trends. Religious activities are not isolated experiences; they will influence the culture of which they are a part and be influenced by it; witness the evolution of the Christmas festival as a general activity which goes far beyond its religious significance."

The danger is, of course, that the religious significance of Christmas is being lost altogether in the welter of things, just as the religious significance of our lives as Americans is being levelled down into a meaningless universalism. Yet the hard core of American civilization, is, as the Declaration of Independence puts it:

"All men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

This little paragraph is America and it is no other country. For it contains two distinct ideas which are derived from the Judaic-Christian insistence upon God's law. These two ideas are:

1. That the individual man is endowed by "nature's god" with certain unalienable rights which are inherent in his nature and are beyond the authority of government;
2. That governments derive their powers from the consent of the governed.

We have become forgetful of these archstones in our political and social system. We are losing our way because we are unmindful of our origins—our spiritual rather than geographical origins.

The United Nations charter avoids philosophy. It dares not say that God, the creator, has endowed man with qualities, dignity and rights. It dares not assert a divine intelligence. And that is important because it makes the individual man, and not the state, the beneficiary of God's gifts.

Here we have a contrast between Christian thought and the neopaganism rampant in the world today. And the Christmas season is a good time to think about such matters. For Jews, Christians and Mohammedans and all great religious bodies, however diverse their interpretations, seek for an explanation of man's rights and obligations in the nature and will of God.

The neo-pagan trusts only to what he himself can comprehend and do. He has made a mess of our world by always dodging the main moral issue, which is the source of the rights of man.

Even those who are not Christians might pause to ponder the meaning of the natural law of god on this fearful Christmas.

No man is free unless he knows the truth.

DIET AND HEALTH

Treating a Diabetic Patient

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DIABETES is a disorder with which the patient must learn to live. The sooner he recognizes that this ailment is a day-in-and-day-out affair, subject to control but not to cure, the better off he will be.

This condition is due to failure of the pancreas to secrete insulin, a substance required for the body's use of sugars. When it is lacking, as in diabetes, sugars are not utilized but spill out into the blood and urine.

Ideal Weight

The main purposes of the treatment of diabetes are to eliminate all of the symptoms of the condition, to attain and maintain the patient's ideal weight, to avoid the formation of acid bodies known as ketones, and to restore the patient to a useful life.

At the beginning of the treatment, the patient should be given a thorough physical examination and his weight recorded. In most cases, the patient's diet need differ little from that of his family, and he may have average servings. Concentrated sweets, however, such as candies, cakes, pies and ice-cream, are eliminated for the most part. The patient is taught to give himself injections of insulin. Protamine insulin, whose effects last longer than those of ordinary insulin, is often used, since it tends to keep the patient's insulin ration more evenly balanced.

Use of Insulin

of symptoms, maintaining his weight or gaining, has no ketones in the urine, and is able to carry on his work without any difficulty, the treatment is considered successful, even though there may be sugar in the urine. On the other hand, some authorities believe that the urine must be kept sugar-free in order to have the best results.

If the patient has such symptoms as fatigue, frequent emptying of the bladder, or loss of weight, the dose of insulin may have to be increased. If the dose of protamine insulin necessary to relieve the symptoms becomes too high, regular insulin may be given in addition.

Regular Routine

Once the patient is on a regular routine which keeps him free of symptoms, he need only return for check-ups about once every six months in most cases.

However, patients with diabetes must learn to recognize the symptoms of inadequate treatment, such as fatigue and loss of weight, so that, when necessary, they can return to the physician promptly for readjustment of their routine.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

N. N.: Is there any remedy for leg ulcers?

Answer: Varicose ulcers are usually treated by applying what is known as an Unna's cast, and the leg kept at rest as much as possible.

The use of a gentian violet solution painted on the ulcer daily has been found effective. Ultraviolet light is also helpful in stimulating the healing. Urea applied over the ulcer also helps.

CHAPTER FORTY-NINE

"MICHAEL, tell me something—or don't, as you please. I won't be offended and you mustn't be. Have you ever been in love?" Liza asked.

"You amaze me. After all I have told you of my susceptibility, to say nothing of what you have seen of it!"

"I am serious. I put it badly. I do not mean, have you ever been in love. I know you have been, just enough to excuse it to yourself, enough to frighten you and make you think of ranch-type houses in the suburbs, enough to make you run away, having, before you met me, no parachute. No, I did not mean that. I meant, have you ever loved a woman?"

"Once."

"I see. . . I am not prying," she said gently.

"I'll tell you about it," he said abruptly. "I haven't told anyone—now living. I didn't tell George. I was going to tell him and the world. But it didn't, as you say, work out."

"Who was she, Michael?"

"Just a girl, very tired, and often hungry. A thin girl, with brilliant eyes and shabby clothes. A girl who sometimes looked for the laughter she had lost. I met her in London. She was working at one of the Ministries. We were to have been married when a marriage could be arranged. When I was there long enough to be married."

She said quickly, "Perhaps I would rather not know what happened. I think I can guess."

"It's a commonplace story, the world ends, so you build a new one," he said wearily. "She was on her way home one evening and there was a raid. She went into the shelter, on which they scored a direct hit. It was some time before I knew."

"Thank you for telling me," she said. "For now you, too, come a little more clearly into focus."

He rose. "I'd better go along," he told her.

"Yes. But before you go, one thing. . . She looked up and laughed. "There you go, looming again!"

"I've always lamented my height," he said, "so uncomfortable, in trains, cars, buses, beds—and little boys yelling, 'What's the weather like up there, mister?'"

She asked, "What happened to your eyes? Virginia said she'd never seen you wear glasses before."

"I wrote things which seemed important and probably weren't," he said, "in odd places, and under bad light, if any. Virginia told me I looked like a beat-up owl."

"I know. She repeated it to me later, and added, 'on stilts.'"

Michael asked, "Surely that's not why you keep me standing here?"

"No. I was trying to get up my courage. If you laugh and say something bright, I'll hurt you."

"That would be interesting. Look, ma, no hands."

"I am serious again. You won't believe me when I say I've known—not in my mind, but somewhere in my blood and nerves, that you have been deeply unhappy. It nagged at and puzzled me. You are too much on the surface. But I knew it was there, the misery. I didn't know what had caused it. I didn't even think of a cause. Still I recognized it, because of my own unhappiness. You haven't been convinced, Michael, perhaps you'll never be. But I understand about direct hits. I was once in a shelter, yet it was not I who died, to all appearances. It was George." She rose and looked at him, and the tears streamed down her face. She said, "Don't laugh, please don't laugh. That's what is wrong with this place—there's no love in it, no warmth, no security or giving."

He waited, smoking, looking out over the river. Now he was convinced. For he had seen such grief, and had himself experienced it, for a long time it had coldly accompanied him. Why hadn't he recognized it in Liza, as she, in him? He thought, Perhaps I have grown insensitive, or trained myself not to look beneath the surface, and the people aren't real, except to me, and then only after a fashion, the extension of my ego, the weapons with which I hope to fulfill ambition?

After a while she said, for the second time that evening, "That was kind of you."

"Liza, I apologize, sincerely."

"There's no need. No one can blame you for thinking as you did. Abby thought so for a while. The girls, for some curious reason, didn't expect they loved their father enough to put what he considered his happiness first, even if they questioned it. At first I was wounded when I realized what George's friends believed. My mother warned me before I married. She was extremely frank. George warned me too, in his way. Later, it didn't matter what his friends thought as long as they didn't think of him as being—cheated. None was very important to him except Robert, who didn't think that, and you. So it became of consequence to me that one day you'd change your mind."

"I have changed it, and I believe, before tonight. But you puzzle me. Sometimes you are so old, Liza, much older, for instance, than Abby—and an octogenarian compared to Virginia. Sometimes younger than a kid who carries her books to school. I used to think, well, that's an act. I don't now."

She said, "I don't believe I can explain, but I'll try. When I married I was the kid who carried her books to school, almost literally. Then I grew up, as George wanted me to—emotionally. Also on the surface, as we call it, for we both know about surfaces, I grew up—just enough. You understand that? I kept house, and received his friends, I read with him, talked, and listened. I learned a great deal. Yet some things I was born knowing, some I had from my mother: the practical things; the making-do, and sense of responsibility, which had to be learned because of our circumstances. And I was truly gay, Michael. That was real. It was as if George said, wear this ring, and these clothes, inhabit this house, and let's pretend that you are Mrs. George Lennox. No one will ever guess that you are still seventeen, going on eighteen, and always will be. Can you comprehend that, Michael?"

"A little, I think."

"But I went on growing up," she said, "not just on the surface. This was good. If I hadn't, what would have happened to me?"

"I don't know," he said.

"It was a secret sort of thing, and not to be shared." She added quickly, "This is not disloyal. I could withhold nothing he wanted. I wished to withhold nothing. But this personal self—we all have that, and it is unlikely that it can be shared even with the person closest to you. She matured. Perhaps a little before her time? If she hadn't, how could I have adjusted myself to loss? I didn't, you see, accept it. I simply adjusted."

"Then you will adjust yourself to being lonely, which follows loss. People mature, in different ways."

She rose. "Now you must go," she said. "Poor Abby, shivering in her birth this not night, imagining that you are here, that we are being highly imprudent, and wondering whether she ought to get off at the next station."

"In her good cotton nightgown?"

"How did you guess?"

"You just know she wears them," he quoted solemnly, and they laughed.

Walking through the living room she said, "It is empty."

"A sofa and all?"

"A sofa is no good, it is just a house, or an apartment or a hotel room or a cold-water flat, and not a home, without a man in it!"

"There you go again," he said. "But now you will have time to do some planning for yourself."

She nodded and he smiled. "Good night, Liza," he said, and took her hand. "Let me know what you decide. Show me, if you wish, the blueprint."

Election Loss Brings Labor-Demo Friction

Rent Control Beyond Dec. 31 Seen Likely

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The Nov. 7 elections and the Republican victories have resulted in an outbreak of undercover friction and name-calling between Labor's political brains and Democratic party stalwarts.

They all were buddies until the votes were counted, but now they are devoting a good bit of time to blaming each other for the sorry—from their point of view—turn of events.

One Cabinet officer privately expressed the opinion that organized Labor hurt the party by being too vociferous and by trying to "take over" the whole Democratic campaign in many areas. He complained that Labor should have toned down its politicking and quietly concentrated its efforts on registering its members to vote.

Labor leaders, on the other hand, contend that some of the election setbacks resulted from Democratic failure to pick good candidates. They argue that they didn't have enough to work with.

All this bickering and passing the buck may result in some serious realignments before the 1952 campaign and in a radically different type of campaigning on the part of Labor political action groups.

● ANOTHER LEASE ON LIFE—The outlook now seems to be good for at least a temporary extension of federal rent controls beyond their Dec. 31 expiration date.

A few weeks ago, the question of continued ceiling was a toss-up. However, action of the Senate banking committee in voting extension of controls through February, and the House banking committee in approving a bill to extend controls through March 31, 1951, are expected to turn the tide in Congress in favor of a 60 or 90-day extension.

The big question will be: Will pro-control forces be able to push through another control law when the 82nd Congress meets in January? The present law was widely touted as "positively the last," but that was before the Korean war and the all-out defense drive put new strains on the housing situation.

Right now, administration leaders are confining their attention to the brief extension, saying they will worry about passage of a new law when the time comes.

● LAND WAR BOLSTERS NAVY—Although the Korean war is being fought mostly on land, it has given the Navy a new lease on life. Economy-minded congressmen were shouting for cutbacks in the fleet before the war began, but now they are shouting for bigger and better ships—particularly aircraft carriers and up-to-the-minute submarines.

Thanks to this new attitude, the Navy is going ahead with the conversion of the 45,000-ton U. S. S. Bennington, an Essex class carrier, to handle new and heavier planes—planes which might carry atomic bombs.

In addition, Chairman Carl Vinson of the House armed services committee plans to introduce legislation calling for construction of a 60,000-ton super-carrier which, to all practical purposes, will embrace the features originally planned for the 65,000-ton U. S. S. United States.

Work on the United States was halted by former Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, who had the lacking of a strong economy bloc on Capitol Hill.

Today, however, the picture is changed and little resistance is expected to the Navy's revived building plans.

Annual Rotaryann Yule Dinner Meeting Is Held In Episcopal Parish House

Boys' School Cleric Heard

Rotarians and their ladies attended the annual Rotaryann Christmas dinner held in St. Philip's Episcopal church parish house Thursday evening.

Tables were decorated with red and white candles and Christmas greens. The lighted Christmas tree under which gifts were placed was on the stage.

Guest speaker for the occasion was the Rev. Charles L. Harrison, chaplain in Boys Industrial school, Lancaster. A third generation Methodist minister, he is president of the National Chaplains' Association and a member of Board of Methodist Chaplains, Washington D. C.

Rev. Mr. Harrison began his address in a humorous vein, but later launched into a serious talk on "Faith and Fear." He cited the faith of the wise men in following the star as an example of faith conquering fear.

Harrison only touched on his work in the industrial school which he said was the largest school of its kind in the United States. It provides a home for more than 700 boys.

Of them, Harrison said, "they are unstable emotionally in an unstable world. It is our job there to quiet their fears aroused by the unstable atmosphere in which they have lived. They must learn to take things as they come."

Karl Herrmann led the Christmas carols with Mrs. Herrmann, Rotary pianist, accompanying them.

The exchange of gifts caused considerable amusement with guest speaker, Harrison, a Kiwanis club member, receiving an engagement book reminding him to come to Rotary luncheon each Thursday.

In charge of dinner arrangements were Frank Barnhill Jr., assisted by Mrs. Barnhill, William Defenbaugh, Earl Smith and Charles Walters.

Ashville Garden Club Holds Yule Party

Stairway in the home of Mrs. William Whitehead of Ashville was festooned with cedar strung with Christmas tree balls when she entertained Ashville Garden Club Thursday evening. Gifts were placed under a lighted Christmas tree. Mantles were decorated with evergreens and Christmas candles.

Mrs. C. E. Mahaffey became president when William Fisher resigned the post because of ill health.

Miss Nelle Oesterle, program director, was in charge of the Christmas entertainment that followed the business session.

Mary Anne Noecker sang Mozart's "Lullaby." Joy Trone's solos included "Away in the Manger" and "Jolly Old St. Nick." Both girls were accompanied by Mrs. Joseph Peters.

Other musical numbers were presented by Mrs. Warren Bastian who sang, "Lo, A Flower e're Blooming" and "Under the Stars."

Presiding at the dining table centered with red roses and Christmas candles were Mrs. Ralph Hosler and Mrs. Mahaffey.

Gifts were brought for an exchange among members and also for Circleville Home and Hospital.

Whisler Group Holds Party

When Whisler Presbyterian Ladies Aid Society held its annual auction of Christmas bazaar gifts Wednesday, it was preceded by a pitch-in dinner. The affair was held in the church. Carol-singing, devotionals and a seasonal poem read by Mrs. Ed Fetherolf, president, made up the program.

January hostesses will be Mrs. Donald Moss, Mrs. Ralph Dresbach Jr. Mrs. Harry Bochart was a guest at this week's dinner.

Holy Name Society Party Attracts 300

About 300 guests were present when Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Catholic church sponsored a Christmas party for the entire parish Wednesday evening.

St. Joseph's recreational center was decorated with Christmas greens and a lighted Christmas tree for the pot luck dinner. The weekly Novena in the church preceded the party.

Christmas carols directed by Ed Frericks were sung. Accompanist was Adrian Merriman. The appearance of Santa Claus was a climax to the affair.

Winners of a poster contest were announced. Peggy Mader was first place winner in class one for the most original poster; Nancy Thomas came second with the best looking poster in the class and Melody Shea received third place for the best colored.

In class two, Frieda Mader won first place for the most original poster; Susan Stocklen placed second for the best looking poster and Sharon Hedges won third place for the best colored.

In class three, Phyllis Butt was first place winner with the most original; Rita Ann Howell second place winner with the best looking poster and Judy Goeller with the best colored.

James P. Shea, president of Holy Name Society, had appointed Dr. Joe Goeller general chairman. Assisting Dr. Goeller were Bernard Mogan, Stanley Stevens, Bill Good Jr., Donald Goeller, Frericks and Merriman.

The Altar Society was responsible for dinner arrangements.

Miss Higman's Marriage Told

Miss Judith La Verne Higman of Williamsport and Richard Gene Speakman of New Holland were married Tuesday evening in Richmond, Ind. The Rev. John H. Carnes performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Martin of Clarksburg who accompanied the couple to Indiana.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Higman of Williamsport. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pearl A. Speakman of New Holland.

The bride wore a beige dress with brown accessories while Mrs. Martin was attired in gray with green accessories.

The new Mrs. Speakman is a graduate of Perry Township high school and an employee of First National Bank. The bridegroom, graduate of Clarksburg high school, is in the armed service.

"WHAT ARE YOU PAYING FOR CORN TODAY"

The Ohio farmer that asked this question over his telephone was offered two cents more per bushel than he could get from another buyer. A few minutes for a telephone call and he made sixty extra dollars.

In business transactions, you can readily reckon the cash value of your telephone. But it also has a value that cannot be measured in dollars—that of keeping you and your family in friendly touch with the world. And there comes a time when its service is priceless—when a member of the family or relative or friend is seriously ill—or when fire, theft, or accident puts you in urgent need of help from your neighbors.

Yes, the Value of the Telephone is Greater Than the Cost!

Woman Of The Week

Mrs. George Troutman, Choir Director, Teacher, Church Worker

Mrs. George Troutman, "Woman of the Week" has a particular talent for "filling in" according to members of Trinity Lutheran church where her husband is pastor. "Wherever there's a need, whether it's the Sunday school, or a woman's organization or a kitchen committee Mrs. Troutman's there to help out" church women say.

A major portion of Mrs. Troutman's time is given to the organizations in her husband's church.

Mrs. Troutman is the mother of three children, Ruth, Joyce and George but she still manages to accept outside responsibilities, to fill in until the right person comes along to take over. Then she relinquishes the jobs... only, it appears, to assume responsibility in some other line.

For a good many years Mrs. Troutman directed both the junior choir and the children's choir in the church. Mrs. Dudley Carpenter now has taken over the younger singers.

Mrs. Troutman taught a class of teen-age youngsters. She instituted a series of lessons starting with Genesis and going through the Bible. She wanted her pupils to have some idea of the Bible as a whole. When Intern Ray Kibler arrived in Circleville, Mrs. Troutman turned the work over to him and he has gone on with the series.

Mrs. Troutman, however, has taken a new class of 15 or 20 youngsters just promoted into the junior department.

Mrs. Troutman, a gifted musician, was instrumental in creating the existing choir.

One of her former choir members said of Mrs. Troutman, "She gets along with young people. She makes them work without getting cross. She's patient. And she's always looking out for kids with good voices. When she spots one, he gets every chance."

Mrs. Troutman takes an active part in women's organizations of the church. She is the newly elected president of Von Bora Society and she is a past president of Lutheran Ladies Society.

Mrs. Troutman is the former Vera Walters. Her parents used to live near the village of Lockbourne. A teacher, Miss Minnie B. Shane, was the first to recognize Vera Walters' talent for music. Through her encouragement Mrs. Troutman became seriously interested in music.

The Walters family moved to Circleville when Vera was still in high school. She is a graduate of Circleville high school.

She received her degree from Wittenberg College and attended Ohio State University.

She took music lessons from Ellis Snyder of Capital University when he taught in Circleville many years ago.

The fact that she grew up in a family with seven brothers and sisters perhaps accounts for the fact that she knows how to cooperate. The fact that Mrs. Troutman taught school for about eight years may have something to do with the fact that she likes children and gets along well with teen agers. Mrs. Troutman occasionally substitutes in the schools when Circleville is hard pressed for teachers.

If Mrs. Troutman will call at Bremer Greenhouse there will be a floral tribute awaiting her as "Woman of the Week."

Christmas motif. A gift exchange was a feature of the afternoon entertainment.

The two remaining charter members of the circle were both present for the occasion. They are Mrs. Charles Kiger and Mrs. Dresbach.

100 Persons Attend Local PTA Meeting

Over 100 persons were present for the covered dish dinner of Circleville Parent-Teacher Association held in high school social rooms Thursday evening.

Negro spirituals were sung by guest choir from Second Baptist church as the main feature of entertainment.

Group singing of Christmas carols was led by Dr. Richard Samuel. Mrs. Carl Snider was accompanist.

Dr. Samuel, association president, conducted the meeting at which a report of the health committee, headed by Mrs. Walter Heine, was given. Needed medical care for underprivileged children will begin immediately. It was also reported that shoes had been purchased for school children from the underprivileged children's fund.

Mrs. Troutman is the former Vera Walters. Her parents used to live near the village of Lockbourne. A teacher, Miss Minnie B. Shane, was the first to recognize Vera Walters' talent for music. Through her encouragement Mrs. Troutman became seriously interested in music.

Card of Thanks

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to express our deepest appreciation to Rev. T. J. Griffin, pastor of the Mader Funeral Home who assisted us following the death of our beloved husband and daddy, the late Loring E. Hulse.
Through the valley of the shadow Down the road of all must tread, The one we love has gone before us And now we wait for his return— May we meet this sorrow bravely Knowing on some distant day We will be again united With the one who is away.
Greatly missed by widow and daughter

CARD OF THANKS
We sincerely appreciate the many kindnesses shown us during the illness and after the death of our beloved father, the late Harley Redman. We thank Dr. V. D. Kerns and Mr. Deffenbaugh for their efficient services, Rev. Brown for his comforting words, the second Baptist Church Choir and relatives and friends and also those who sent flowers.
Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Weaver

HEISE IS SHOW-STEALER

Tigers Suffer 3rd Loss As Lions Win By 56-34

Circleville's Red and Black basketball team lost its third game in as many starts Friday night when Washington's Blue Lions invaded here.

The Washington courtmen played for keeps in the contest, sending the Tigers to the showers on the south end of a 56-34 margin.

For Washington, one of the leading contenders in this year's South Central Ohio League pennant chase, it was the second loop victory under its belt.

Circleville, winner of last year's SCOL toga and boasting a 15-3 record for the season, was handed the loss in its first defense of its crown this season.

THE STARTING Tiger quintet was skittish in the opening minutes of play and spotted the invading Lions a 15-1 advantage before Tiger Coach Dick West rang the gong for a change.

Circleville fans cheered lustily during the change when Phil Heise and Bill "Two Ton" Gillis took to the floor, along with Dave Coffland and Don Olney.

floor to represent the starting five in the contest.

The Circleville cheering was rewarded during the next few minutes of play when Heise unlimbered his shooting eye to sink three straight set shots and nab three out of four free throws.

Gillis added two points to the tally during the rally as the Tigers zoomed from the 15-1 deficit to 15-9, 16-11, 18-13, 20-15 and finally 22-16 as the period ended.

Jerry Rooney was added to the lineup to open the third quarter and scored on a jump shot to give the CHS'ers their closest approach to the lead of the game at 22-18.

WASHINGTON rallied on a quick succession of shots during the next few minutes of play to run the score to 31-20 before Heise bucketed a push shot. Both teams scored almost alternately during the remainder of the period, with Washington leading 41-28 at the period end.

The Washington outfit completely dominated the play in the final canto of the game as the starting quintet was sent in to relieve the subs, who had sagged after the strenuous battle.

Circleville's reserve team lost a thriller in the preliminary tilt when the Washington juniors handed them a 38-37 loss.

Both teams were equal in scoring during the first canto, with the score deadlocked at 7-7. Washington reservists assumed the lead at the half, however, by a 19-15 margin, and at the three-quarter mark held a 30-27 lead.

Circleville's subs knotted the score at 33-33 with less than five minutes to play in the final stanza, and then jumped into the lead only to lose out in the final minute of play.

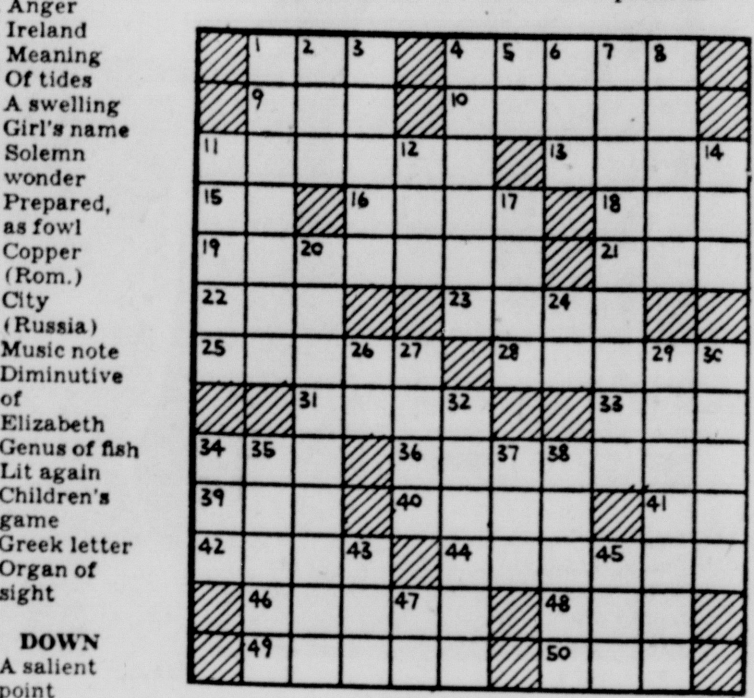

Lanky Clarence Boyd was the spearhead of attack for the CHS reservists in the tilt, netting a total of 21 points. Washington was paced by Jack Rittig, who marked a total of 17 points.

Circleville will travel to Chillicothe Saturday night for its fourth test of the season. The reserve tilt is slated to begin at

Our Freedom In Danger, President Tells America

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—Swift mobilization of all American manpower and resources today follows President Truman's grim warning last night that Russia has pushed the world "to the brink of a general war" and that "the future of civilization depends on what we do."

The President told every American that he must pay higher taxes, work longer hours, produce more and get along with fewer luxuries because "our freedom is in danger."

Solemn and grim-faced, the President told millions of Americans by radio and television:

"Our homes, our nation, all the things we believe in, are in great danger. This danger has been created by the rulers of the Soviet Union."

"The future of civilization depends on what we do now, and in the months ahead."

In a last-minute insertion in his address, the President declared the wildcat railroad strike is a "danger to the security of our nation." He called upon the union and its striking members to return to work immediately. They were complying this morning.

MR. TRUMAN spoke of hopes for peace, despite the grimness of his message, and asserted he does not believe war "is inevitable."

But he declared: "We will not engage in appeasement."

"We are willing to negotiate differences, but we will not yield to aggression. Appeasement of evil is not the road to peace."

The chief executive pledged the U. S. to fight to defend the principles of the United Nations in Korea, and elsewhere.

He said "Europe and the rest of the world are in great danger" of Communist attack and that Secretary of State Acheson and representatives of the other North Atlantic Treaty Nations will immediately complete plans for a joint army, navy and air force "to defend Europe."

It is possible, the President said, for the free world and the Soviet Union to negotiate on their "legitimate interests," and even reach a peaceful answer to Korea. But he added that the lesson of Munich is that "security cannot be bought with appeasement."

Citing the increases in the armed forces already achieved and those still in blueprint, Mr. Truman declared:

"We have a large Navy. We have a powerful Airforce. We have units around which a strong Army can be built. But measured against the danger that confronts us, our forces are not adequate."

HE SAID THAT for the sake of the nation's survival "we must set very high targets and be willing to make an all-out effort to reach them."

"Workers," the President added, "will be called upon to work more hours. More women and more young people and older workers will be needed in our plants and factories. Farmers will have to set higher production goals. Businessmen will have to put all their know-how to work to increase production."

"In the days ahead each of us should measure his own efforts, his own sacrifices by the standard of our heroic men in Korea."

Mr. Truman told the American people that not only is "our freedom in danger" but that the nation is faced with a historic responsibility.

He said:

"We must remember that we are the leaders of the free world. We must understand that we cannot achieve peace by ourselves, but only by cooperating with other free nations."

The President outlined these belt-tightening moves on the homefront:

1. Price controls "at once" on many materials and products essential to defense and to hold the line on living costs.

2. Stabilizing of wages.

3. Setting up of a system of "fair standards" for prices and wages where mandatory controls are not imposed. The President said "the chiselers will not be allowed to get by" and violations will hasten imposition of mandatory controls and roll-backs in prices and wages.

4. CUTBACKS in "many lines of civilian production" to provide the essential materials for defense, with expanded production of steel, copper, aluminum, electric power, and food.

5. Higher taxes to put the defense program "as nearly as possible on a pay-as-you-go basis." The President will soon hand Congress a drastic new tax bill.

6. Federal spending for non-defense purposes will be sharply slashed.

7. More women, young people and older people will be needed in defense plants. All workers will be called upon to work longer hours and produce more.

8. The defense effort "will require us to make a lot of changes in our ordinary ways of doing things."

Mr. Truman accused Soviet Russian rulers with trying to "undermine or overwhelm the free nations, one by one." He asserted that this is the real meaning of the Korean conflict and the reason "why we are in such grave danger."

PROMOTED to rank of captain in the U. S. Airforce is Donald G. Jackson of Circleville. He is a jet fighter pilot assigned to the 91st Interceptor Squadron, Larson Airforce Base, Washington.

Answer On Korean Situation Booked

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 16—The Chinese Communist delegation will make an important announcement late this afternoon and this is expected to be a flat rejection of the United Nations request for a cease fire in Korea.

The Chinese Communists refused to make any disclosure, but informed UN circles said that their price for peace in the Korean peninsula will comprise the following:

1—Withdrawal of United Nations forces from Korea.

2—Withdrawal of the United States Seventh Fleet from Formosan waters.

3—The ouster of the Chinese Nationalists from the UN and the admission of the Peiping government.

Disclosure of the impending announcement was made last night after Gen. Wu Hsiu-chuan, Chief Chinese Communist spokesman at the UN, conferred privately with UN Secretary General Trygve Lie.

AN AIDE TO WU later said that the Communists will offer a full review on all issues pertaining to the Korean conflict and the topics discussed with Lie.

Wu did not attempt to communicate with the assembly's three-man truce committee. It is comprised of Assembly President Nasrallah Entezam of Iran, Foreign Secretary Lester B. Pearson of Canada and Sir Benegal Rau of India, who officially notified Wu that the world organization seeks a cease fire in Korea at the earliest possible moment.

The notification was sent to the Chinese Communist headquarters in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York.

Rau, who was the moving force in the cease fire program, was delegated to make the first personal contact with Wu in behalf of the truce committee.

It is understood that the group's strategy will be formulated after Rau has had a talk with Wu. It will necessarily have to take into consideration Wu's scheduled statement this afternoon.

MR. TRUMAN expressed confidence that the U. S. "will meet the dangers that confront us with courage and determination, strong in the faith that we can thereby 'secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity.'"

He addressed these words to every citizen in the land:

President Issues Emergency Order As Reds Threaten

Office Of Defense Mobilization To Be Headed By GE Chieftain

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—President Truman today proclaimed a national emergency and created the Office of Defense Mobilization to place the nation on a virtual war basis to meet the "great" danger of a general Soviet attack.

Mr. Truman signed the national emergency proclamation at 10:20 a. m. (EST). This action was followed within minutes by an executive order creating the super agency to supervise the nation's mobilization program.

The ODM will be headed by Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric.

In the document, the President charged Communist imperialism with designs for "world conquest" and said U. S. defense forces must be strengthened "as speedily as possible to the end that we may be able to repel any and all threats" to American security.

THE FUNCTION of the giant new defense mobilization agency will be to produce arms for a 3,500,000-man armed force, supervise economic controls, and convert the U. S. into an "arsenal for the defense of freedom."

The first governmental actions under the new setup are expected to be price-wage controls on a part of the economy—mostly materials and products needed for the planned rapid expansion of the defense program.

The President called on all citizens of America to make sacrifices and a supreme effort to back up the nation's defense effort.

The presidential proclamation immediately gave the President extraordinary executive powers.

It started the wheels turning on a gigantic rearming program that will channel the nation's economy to a large extent from production of civilian goods to the weapons, planes, tanks, guns and atomic bombs needed to defend the U. S. and other free nations.

The President said:

"Now, therefore, I, Harry S. Truman, President of the United States of America, do proclaim the existence of a national emergency, which requires that the military, naval, air, and civilian defenses of this country be strengthened as speedily as possible to the end that we may be able to repel any and all threats against our national security and to fulfill our responsibilities in the efforts being made through the United Nations and otherwise to bring about lasting peace."

MR. TRUMAN expressed confidence that the U. S. "will meet the dangers that confront us with courage and determination, strong in the faith that we can thereby 'secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity.'"

He addressed these words to every citizen in the land:

nessmen to make a mighty production effort to meet the defense requirements of the nation and to this end to eliminate all waste and inefficiency and to subordinate all lesser interests to the common good.

"I summon every person and every community to make, with a spirit of neighborliness, whatever sacrifices are necessary for the welfare of the nation."

"I summon all state and local leaders and officials to cooperate fully with the military and civilian defense agencies of the United States in the national defense agencies of the United States in the national defense program."

"I summon all citizens to be loyal to the principles upon which our nation is founded, to keep faith with our friends and allies, and to be firm in our devotion to the peaceful purposes to which the United Nations was founded."

The President warned that if Communist imperialism's goal should be achieved the U. S. could not survive as a free nation.

MR. TRUMAN declared:

"World conquest by Communist imperialism is the goal of the forces of aggression that have been loosed upon the world."

"Recent events in Korea and elsewhere constitute a grave threat to the peace of the world and imperil the efforts of this country and those of the United Nations to prevent aggression and armed conflict."

"The increasing menace of the forces of Communist aggression requires that the national defense of the United States be strengthened as speedily as possible."

"The President called on all citizens of America to make sacrifices and a supreme effort to back up the nation's defense effort."

1952 Summons Almost As Large

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—One million Americans will go into uniform next year and almost another million will be called up in 1952 under President Truman's program to meet the "grave danger" of Soviet aggression.

As an initial step in troop mobilization, two National Guard infantry divisions are being alerted today for active service Jan. 16. They are the 31st (Alabama - Mississippi) and 47th (Minnesota-North Dakota).

Mr. Truman set the military manpower goal at about 3.5 million men with personnel drawn from the National Guard, Reserves and an accelerated draft rate.

Some two million men would be supplied by the standby units. Selective Service would furnish the rest. Draftees will serve for 24 months instead of the present 21.

A high Defense Department official said that approximately 800,000 replacements will be inducted each year after 1951 although the "plateau strength" of the armed forces will be reached about the middle of next year.

TO SUPPLEMENT manpower needs, the President ordered a commensurate increase in military production of planes, combat vehicles and electronics.

He explained that this upsurge would have to be achieved under a vastly expanded program of longer working hours and full utilization of women and young people.

Mr. Truman said that within a year plane output would increase five-fold, combat vehicles, four, and electronics, 4.5.

This would bring plane production to 1,500 or 2,000 aircraft with about 100 light tanks rolling from the assembly lines each month.

Congress has been asked to appropriate funds for about 4,000 tanks of all types.

Electronics information is secret, but some of this equipment will be used on ten vessels which are being converted to aircraft carriers and on other ships, planes and military devices.

Mr. Truman described the arms program as "an arsenal for the defense of freedom" from which other free nations can draw weapons to aid the Allied cause.

92 VOICES TO BE HEARD

Annual Christmas Vesper Is Due Sunday Afternoon

Circleville high school's 92-voice choir will present its annual Christmas vesper service at 4 p. m. Sunday in the high school auditorium.

This year's vesper service will be presented in two parts, featuring the talents of 19 soloists and ensemble group singers.

Director Truman Eberly said the first portion of the program will be "The Christmas Story" in scripture and song, while the second portion will consist of narratives and singing of the customs and carols of many lands.

Beverly Reid and James Bartholomew will be featured as narrators in the final portion of the program, while both also are to present individual performances during the first portion.

OTHERS TO BE featured as soloists during the vesper service are Nancy Waple, John Howard, Charles Magill and Roy Huffer.

In addition, two ensemble groups will be heard during the first portion of the program.

They are the girls' triple trio, composed of Margaret Green, Jacquie Smith, Nancy Waple, Theresa Hill, Dorothy Lampson, Eleanor Lewis, Beatrice Bass, Beverly Reid and Marjorie Thornton; and a special echo ensemble made up of Pat Peters, Phyllis Dresbach, Larry Thornton and Ralph Sterling.

Accompaniment throughout the program will be provided by Patty Shellhammer.

The program is to be opened with the group singing "Silent Night," followed by a narrative.

Local Coca-Cola Boss Refuses To Hike Prices

Nickel coke will remain a nickel in the Circleville area.

Henry Reid, manager of the Circleville Coca-Cola Bottling Co., said Saturday that his firm will not join the recent price increase.

And, Reid declared, "I see no reason to hike the price within the immediate future."

The local Coke chieftain intimated he believed that soft drink increases this week were the result of a "price war."

He stressed that local dealers should not be alarmed about prospects, saying they would be given ample warning if and when any increase is contemplated.

As a result, Coke will continue to sell at its 60-year traditional price of five cents per bottle. By the carton, the price remains at 25 cents and by the case at $1. Dealer wholesale prices, too, remain unchanged.

from St. Luke 2:1-14 and "There Were Shepherds."

In all, the program will consist of nearly 50 vocal selections and narratives leading into the selections. The program is expected to last little more than one hour.

COMPLETE LIST of the young musicians who will perform during the Sunday vesper service is:

New Idle Pay Claims Zoom In November

An increase has been noted in the number of new and continued claims for unemployment compensation filed by Pickaway County residents in November.

According to Mary Wolf, local Bureau of Unemployment Compensation clerk, 117 new claims were filed last month, compared to only 62 in October.

"We find continued claims jumped from 211 in October to 347 in November," Miss Wolf said. "Normal seasonal declines in farming, canning and construction jobs accounted for a large percent of the increase in the claims last month."

The local BUC office was visited by 1,356 persons in November. The month before visits totaled 1,002.

Last month the office made 28 placements in local industry, 10 of these being agricultural.

C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, made 24 employer visits during November.

Little Ashville Gives 73 Pints To Bloodmobile

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile visited Circleville's little neighbor to the north—Ashville—Friday afternoon.

When the unit headed back toward Columbus, it carried with it 73 pints of blood. A total of 82 persons registered, nine being rejected because they had eaten a fatty meal that day.

This figure amounts to more than the Bloodmobile collected in Circleville in its last four trips and more than half of the entire Pickaway County quota for January.

The Bloodmobile will make an attempt to secure some blood Jan. 26 when it is next due in Circleville. The quota then will be 144 pints. Last stop here, the Bloodmobile collected not a single pint.

Iceman Should Never Have Left

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16—Talk about the iceman cometh—he never should have left.

At least as it applies to Carlo Fanesa, 55-year-old West Philadelphia iceman. While he was attending a meeting last night, burglars entered his home and stole $7000 in cash savings. Fanesa told police the money was in $5, $10 and $20 bills.

Unsigned 'Crank' Letters Irking Humane Officer

Pickaway County Humane Officer Ralph Wallace launched a complaint against complainants Friday.

The dog warden said his complaint was against persons who write to him complaining about other people's pets and then fail to sign their names.

"Sometimes I receive letters saying that a person is mistreating his dog or cat or that the animal is creating a disturbance," Wallace said.

"I have to deal with them as crank letters unless the person signs his name so that I know he just doesn't have personal grievance against the owner."

The warden said he checks on most of the letters but is unable to tell whether the sender is serious unless he signs his name to the complaint.

Two Major Rites Set For Sunday In First EUB

Two major services are to be
United Brethren church.

Unified worship service upon
the theme of "Christmas Pathways" will be held beginning at 9:30 a. m., while a Christmas
cantata, "The Music of Bethlehem," will be presented at 8
p. m.

During morning worship, Miss Pat Nau will play "Chimes at Christmas" at the organ.

Church School Superintendent
Edwin Richardson will give the
call to worship, offer the prayer
of invocation and lead the congregation in the affirmation of
faith, "The Apostle's Creed."

The congregation will sing the
hymn "O, Come, All Ye Faithful," after which Rev. Wilson
will give the pastoral prayer.

Fidelis Chorus will sing the anthem, "Christmas Bells are Ringing." Miss Nau will play,
"Christmas Meditation" and
"March."

The congregational closing
hymn will be "As With Gladness
Men of Old."

A feeling of inferiority produces sensitiveness which, in turn, produces unwholesome introspection and loneliness. The resultant retreat from reality—
because "dissatisfaction is painful"—develops within the "suffering" individual an "inferiority
complex." This "complex" tends to dominate the individual's entire outlook on life.

The "superiority complex" is equally defeating to social progress. In this case the individual in both attitude and behavior
seeks to dominate other individuals. Arrogance tends to become the life-spirit and social harmony, in his eyes, does not even seem desirable.

A wholesome social order demands individuals and groups
who do not have such "complexes." The logical deduction from all of this is that the way by
which the individual achieves the

'God With Us' Is Theme For Presbyterians

"God With Us" is the title of
the advent sermon which the
Rev. Donald Mitchell will preach
in Presbyterian church this Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell states:
The original text is found in the book of Isaiah, chapter 7, where-
in it is made quite clear that God, not the Assyrian king, will
save His people; and that any alliances with the enemies of God's people will bring nothing but disaster.

"Thus the record of the birth
of Jesus referring back to Isaiah,
(742 B. C., uses the name Immanuel, for the Christ child,
meaning God With Us."

During the worship service,
the choir will sing, "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling" and
the congregation will sing the
hymns "O Come All Ye Faithful," "It Came Upon The Mid-

At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L.
Huston will play "Christmas
Pastorale," "Jesu Bambino" and
"In Dulci Jubilo."

Preceding worship, an hour
of Bible study will begin at 9:30
a. m. The newly formed Men's Bible Class will meet in the chapel.

Cradle and nursery service is provided for parents wishing to bring children for the hour of worship.

In the evening at 6:30 p. m.,
the Westminster Fellowship will serve a supper with parents and families as guests. A program of carols and Christmas tableaux
will be presented. Devotions will be led by Hal Spencer, sponsor
of the group; Elizabeth Musser
will play the prelude.

Sermon Topic Is Selected

Sermon topic for Sunday in Circleville Church of the Nazarene, to be delivered by the Rev.
D. E. Clay, will be "Jesus, the Light of the World."

Special music for the service will be presented by the Rev. and Mrs. Orla Bradford of Columbus, evangelists for the church.
Sunday school is to begin at 9:30 a. m. with study from the topic "Victorious in Daily Living."

Highroads Of Universe

By DR. J. GLOVER JOHNSON
Professor of Religion
Marietta College

Our brief look at the principles
of psychology during recent weeks has shown us that in the effort to achieve harmony between the subconscious and the conscious self, no stimuli should
be brought within the experience
of the individual which will give him the feeling that he is inferior to any other individual.

A feeling of inferiority produces sensitiveness which, in turn, produces unwholesome introspection and loneliness. The resultant retreat from reality—
because "dissatisfaction is painful"—develops within the "suffering" individual an "inferiority
complex." This "complex" tends to dominate the individual's entire outlook on life.

The "superiority complex" is equally defeating to social progress. In this case the individual in both attitude and behavior
seeks to dominate other individuals. Arrogance tends to become the life-spirit and social harmony, in his eyes, does not even seem desirable.

A wholesome social order demands individuals and groups
who do not have such "complexes." The logical deduction from all of this is that the way by which the individual achieves the feeling of being well-coordinated

Solos, Duet To Be Heard By Methodists

"Christmas Listening" will be the sermon theme presented Sunday in First Methodist church
by the Rev. Robert Weaver during a "see you in church Sunday" service.

Special music will be a feature of the service, containing the anthems "Holy Lord God" and
"Carol of the Shepherd."

Mrs. Ray Friend and Miss
Beverly Reid are to present a duet entitled "Gesu Bambino"
during the service, while Ray
Friend and Mrs. Vaden Couch
will present solos during the singing of "Holy Night, Peaceful Night."

Children of the Sunday school
are to present a special program
at 7:30 p. m. Sunday in the church. The service will be directed by Superintendent
W. Earl Hilyard.

Christmas Play To Be Presented

A Christmas play entitled
"Christmas Everywhere" will be presented at 7:30 p. m. Sunday
in Pilgrim Holiness church, Haywood avenue.

A total of 53 young people of the church are to participate in the program, directed by Mrs.
Paul Seymour, Mrs. Alonzo Hill
and Mrs. Ruth Davis.

The play is designed to portray how each country should

Pre-Christmas Rites Planned By Lutherans

Services in preparation for Christmas will be held in Trinity Lutheran church at 10:15
a. m. Sunday.

The Rev. George L. Troutman has selected for his sermon the
Christmas."

At this service, three persons will become affiliated with the Church by means of transfer.
Mrs. Lizette Eichenbergs and daughter, Mrs. Donera Peter-
sons, formerly displaced persons
in Europe, will be received from the Latvian Lutheran church
and Mrs. Ira Harrington will be received from Hope Lutheran
church of Columbus.

In connection with the morning service, the junior choir will present the Christmas cantata,
"The Manger of Bethlehem,"
which consists of the eight parts.
They are: The Christ is born;
the weary world is waiting; the manger of Bethlehem; holy memories; fling wide the gates
of praise; over the desert; sleep,
babe so holy; and now is come
salvation.

Included in these parts are two male-chorus numbers and
special solos and duets which will be taken by the following singers: Peggy Andrews; James Bartholomew; Margaret Dres-
bach; Ruth Grubb; John How-

Scripture—II Corinthians 11:16-33; 12:7-10; Philippians 3:4-11; II Timothy 4; James 1:2-4.

By Alfred J. Buescher

To defend himself from those who would supplant him in leadership, Paul wrote to the Corinthians to tell of his sufferings in the cause of Christ. "Thrice was
I beaten with rods," he wrote.

"Once was I stoned," Paul wrote to the church at Corinth; "thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep; in journeyings often
in peril of waters, in peril of robbers."

"In weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness; besides those things which cometh upon
me daily, the care of the churches."

Also Paul told of the time when he was threatened with capture by authorities,
"and through a window in a basket
I let down by the wall, and escaped."

MEMORY VERSE—James 1:2-3.

SHAME OF A NATION

IF THERE is a single person in the United States who does not feel a measure of shame because of the Korean debacle, he is not worthy of citizenship in a free land. Sorrow and regret for the boys dying in Korea is universal, but they are separate emotions from those which have placed a burden upon the heart of every loyal American, as he views the situation in which this nation finds itself because of failure in leadership.

Five years ago a pair of bombs was dropped upon key cities in Japan, bringing to an abrupt end a war that had lasted for years. The whole world was impressed by the destruction wrought by this new and terrible weapon.

We Americans became very proud of ourselves, stuck out our national chest and did considerable strutting. With the A-bomb we were in control of the world. No other nation would have the temerity to do as much as make an ugly face at the United States, now that the United States had the means of blasting any enemy from the face of the earth.

The government destroyed or dismantled the strongest military force in history. There was a race between Washington and Moscow—to see whether Washington could destroy facilities which guaranteed national security faster than the reds could build the biggest armed force ever known.

This country had the bomb, and it still has it, although the secrets of its manufacture were stolen by Russian spies. But apparently use of the bomb would be of no help in Korea, where general military strength is needed.

The United States is in its present predicament because it followed blindly those who promised security but gave the nation cheap politics instead.

PARTY MUST BE SERVED

SEVERAL months ago it was announced the government would build a large hydrogen bomb plant in the heart of the Ozarks in northern Arkansas or southern Missouri. It was pointed out the plant would be located in the interior of the country, safe from possible attack from either coast. It would not be possible, it was declared, for an enemy plane to penetrate that far into the interior, or to inflict important damage on this important facility.

But the plans have been changed, and instead of being located in this comparatively safe region the plant is to be built in the Savannah Valley, only minutes by air from the Atlantic Coast. The proposed plant would be an easy target for enemy bombers.

Why the change? Politics. The administration is making every effort to woo the support of Southern Democrats. Locating a great plant, employing thousands of men, might help to put the administration back in favor. Party must be served at all cost.

Election Loss Brings Labor-Demo Friction
Rent Control Beyond Dec. 31 Seen Likely

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The Nov. 7 elections and the Republican victories have resulted in an outbreak of undercover friction and name-calling between Labor's political brains and Democratic party stalwarts.

They all were buddies until the votes were counted, but now they are devoting a good bit of time to blaming each other for the sorry—

from their point of view—turn of events. One Cabinet officer privately expressed the opinion that organized Labor hurt the party by being too vociferous and by trying to "take over" the whole Democratic campaign in many areas. He complained that Labor should have toned down its politicking and quietly concentrated its efforts on registering its members to vote.

Labor leaders, on the other hand, contend that some of the election setbacks resulted from Democratic failure to pick good candidates. They argue that they didn't have enough to work with.

All this bickering and passing the buck may result in some serious realignments before the 1952 campaign and in a radically different type of campaigning on the part of Labor political action groups.

These Days

The mails are growing heavier; Christmas cards are beginning to arrive. Cartons and packages clutter the inner rooms of the house and in a day or two, all sorts of colored paper and tinsel and fanciful tapes will appear. It is just before Christmas.

But what is this holiday, for which such magnificent preparations are being made? Is it the gift-giving day set apart as a convenience? Is it a day to notify forgotten friends and relatives that their names remain on a list for once-a-year attention? Or is it the anniversary of the birth of Christ?

I found a curious comment on this subject by Harry L. Lurie, executive director, Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds. He writes:

"It is exceedingly doubtful whether the various religious sects and denominations which exist in this country can remain immune to the general cultural trends. Religious activities are not isolated experiences; they will influence the culture of which they are a part and be influenced by it; witness the evolution of the Christmas festival as a general activity which goes far beyond its religious significance."

The danger is, of course, that the religious significance of Christmas is being lost altogether in the welter of things, just as the religious significance of our lives as Americans is being levelled down into a meaningless universalism. Yet the hard core of American civilization, is, as the Declaration of Independence puts it:

"All men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

This little paragraph is America and it is no other country. For it contains two distinct ideas which are derived from the Judaic-Christian insistence upon God's law. These two ideas are:

1. That the individual man is endowed by "nature's god" with certain unalienable rights which are inherent in his nature and are beyond the authority of government;
2. That governments derive their powers from the consent of the governed.

We have become forgetful of these archstones in our political and social system. We are losing our way because we are unmindful of our origins—our spiritual rather than geographical origins.

The United Nations chapter avoids philosophy. It dares not say that God, the creator, has endowed man with qualities, dignity and rights. It dares not assert a divine intelligence. And that is important because it makes the individual man, and not the state, the beneficiary of God's gifts.

Here we have a contrast between Christian thought and the neopaganism rampant in the world today. And the Christmas season is a good time to think about such matters. For Jews, Christians and Mohammedans and all great religious bodies, however diverse their interpretations, seek for an explanation of man's rights and obligations in the nature and will of God.

The neo-pagan trusts only to what he himself can comprehend and do. He has made a mess of our world by always dodging the main moral issue, which is the source of the rights of man.

Even those who are not Christians might pause to ponder the meaning of the natural law of god on this fearful Christmas.

Treating a Diabetic Patient

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DIABETES is a disorder with which the patient must learn to live. The sooner he recognizes that this ailment is a day-in-and-day-out affair, subject to control but not to cure, the better off he will be.

This condition is due to failure of the pancreas to secrete insulin, a substance required for the body's use of sugars. When it is lacking, as in diabetes, sugars are not utilized but spill out into the blood and urine.

Ideal Weight

The main purposes of the treatment of diabetes are to eliminate all of the symptoms of the condition, to attain and maintain the patient's ideal weight, to avoid the formation of acid bodies known as ketones, and to restore the patient to a useful life.

At the beginning of the treatment, the patient should be given a thorough physical examination and his weight recorded. In most cases, the patient's diet need differ little from that of his family, and he may have average servings. Concentrated sweets, however, such as candies, cakes, pies and ice-cream, are eliminated for the most part. The patient is taught to give himself injections of insulin. Protamine insulin, whose effects last longer than those of ordinary insulin, is often used, since it tends to keep the patient's insulin ration more evenly balanced.

Use of Insulin

of symptoms, maintaining his weight or gaining, has no ketones in the urine, and is able to carry on his work without any difficulty, the treatment is considered successful, even though there may be sugar in the urine. On the other hand, some authorities believe that the urine must be kept sugar-free in order to have the best results.

If the patient has such symptoms as fatigue, frequent emptying of the bladder, or loss of weight, the dose of insulin may have to be increased. If the dose of protamine insulin necessary to relieve the symptoms becomes too high, regular insulin may be given in addition.

Regular Routine

Once the patient is on a regular routine which keeps him free of symptoms, he need only return for check-ups about once every six months in most cases.

However, patients with diabetes must learn to recognize the symptoms of inadequate treatment, such as fatigue and loss of weight, so that, when necessary, they can return to the physician promptly for readjustment of their routine.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

N. N.: Is there any remedy for leg ulcers?

Answer: Varicose ulcers are usually treated by applying what is known as an Unna's cast, and the leg kept at rest as much as possible.

The use of a gentian violet solution painted on the ulcer daily has been found effective. Ultraviolet light is also helpful in stimulating the healing. Urea applied over the ulcer also helps.

LOOK OUT for LIZA

CHAPTER FORTY-NINE
"MICHAEL, tell me something—or don't, as you please. I won't be offended and you mustn't be. Have you ever been in love?" Liza asked.

"You amaze me. After all I have told you of my susceptibility, to say nothing of what you have seen of it!"

"I am serious. I put it badly. I do not mean, have you ever been in love. I know you have been, just enough to excite it to your self, enough to frighten you and make you think of ranch-type houses in the suburbs, enough to make you run away, having, before you met me, no parachute. No. I did not mean that. I meant, have you ever loved a woman?"

"Once."

"I see. . . I am not prying," she said gently.

"I'll tell you about it," he said abruptly. "I haven't told anyone—now living. I didn't tell George. I was going to tell him and the world. But it didn't, as you say, work out."

"Who was she, Michael?"

"Just a girl, very tired, and often hungry. A thin girl, with brilliant eyes and shabby clothes. A girl who sometimes looked for the laughter she had lost. I met her in London. She was working at one of the Ministries. We were to have been married when a marriage could be arranged. When I was there long enough to be married."

She said quickly, "Perhaps I would rather not know what happened. I think I can guess."

"It's a commonplace story, the world ends, so you build a new one," he said wearily. "She was on her way home one evening and there was a raid. She went into the shelter, on which they scored a direct hit. It was some time before I knew."

"Thank you for telling me," she said. "For now you, too, come a little more clearly into focus."

He rose. "I'd better go along," he told her.

"Yes. But before you go, one thing. . . She looked up and laughed. "There you go, looming again!"

"I've always lamented my height," he said, "so uncomfortable, in trains, cars, buses, beds—and little boys yelling, 'What's the weather like up there, mister?'"

She asked, "What happened to your eyes? Virginia said she'd never seen you wear glasses before."

"I wrote things which seemed important and probably weren't," he said, "in odd places, and under bad light, if any. Virginia told me I looked like a beat-up owl."

"I know. She repeated it to me later, and added, 'on stilts.'"

Michael asked, "Surely that's not why you keep me standing here?"

"No. I was trying to get up my courage. If you laugh and say something bright, I'll hurt you."

"especially when you consider that I only learned to drive yesterday!"

One of the country's leading magazines recently asked a cross section of its readers, "When you yearn for a favorite dish, what is it?" The following nominations received the most votes:

1. Roast beef and mashed potatoes.
2. Fried chicken.
3. Spaghetti and meat balls.
4. Ham and eggs.
5. French fried potatoes.

My own favorite dish is Anne Baxter.

over the terrace."

"That would be interesting. Look, ma, no hands."

"I am serious again. You won't believe me when I say I've known—not in my mind, but somewhere in my blood and nerves, that you have been deeply unhappy. It nagged at and puzzled me. You are too much on the surface. But I knew it was there, the misery. I didn't know what had caused it. I didn't even think of a cause. Still I recognized it, because of my own unhappiness. You haven't been convinced, Michael, perhaps you'll never be. But I understand about direct hits. I was once in a shelter, yet it was not I who died, to all appearances. It was George."

She rose and looked at him, and the tears streamed down her face. She said, "Don't laugh, please don't laugh. That's what is wrong with this place—there's no love in it, no warmth, no security or giving."

"Sit down, Liza," he said, greatly moved. He took her hands and held them. "Sit down there, in the big chair. And I'll sit here, for a while. You needn't talk. Cry if you like, instead. Cry hard."

He waited, smoking, looking out over the river. Now he was convinced. For he had seen such grief, and had himself experienced it, for a long time it had coldly accompanied him. Why hadn't he recognized it in Liza, as she, in him? He thought, Perhaps I have grown insensitive, or trained myself not to look beneath the surface, except when I'm at a typewriter and the people aren't real, except to me, and then only after a fashion, the extension of my ego, the weapons with which I hope to fulfill ambition?

"Liza, I apologize, sincerely."

"There's no need. No one can blame you for thinking as you did. Abby thought so for a while. The girls, for some curious reason, didn't. I expect they loved their father enough to put what he considered his happiness first, even if they questioned it. At first I was wounded when I realized what George's friends believed. My mother warned me before I married. She was extremely frank. George warned me, too, in his way. Later, it didn't matter what his friends thought as long as they didn't think of him as being—cheated. None was very important to him except Robert, who didn't think that, and you. So it became of consequence to me that one day you'd change your mind."

"I have changed it, and, I believe, before tonight. But I puzzle me. Sometimes you are so old, Liza, much older, for instance, than Abby—and an octogenarian compared to Virginia. Sometimes younger than a kid who carries her books to school. I used to

She said, "I don't believe I can explain, but I'll try. When I married I was the kid who carried her books to school, almost literally. Then I grew up, as George wanted me to—emotionally. Also on the surface, as we call it, for we both know about surfaces, I grew up—just enough. You understand that? I kept house, and received his friends, I read with him, talked, and listened. I learned a great deal. Yet some things I was born knowing, some I had from my mother: the practical things; the making-do, and sense of responsibility, which had to be learned because of our circumstances. And I was truly gay, Michael. That was real. It was as if George said, wear this ring, and these clothes, inhabit this house, and let's pretend that you are Mrs. George Lennox. No one will ever guess that you are still seventeen, going on eighteen, and always will be. Can you comprehend that, Michael?"

"A little, I think."

"But I went on growing up," she said, "not just on the surface. This was good. If I hadn't, what would have happened to me?"

"I don't know," he said.

"It was a secret sort of thing, and not to be shared." She added quickly, "This is not disloyal. I could withhold nothing he wanted. I wished to withhold nothing. But this personal self—we all have that, and it is unlikely that it can be shared even with the person closest to you. She matured. Perhaps a little before her time? If she hadn't, how could I have adjusted myself to loss? I didn't, you see, accept it. I simply adjusted."

"Then you will adjust yourself to being lonely, which follows loss. People manage, in different ways."

She rose. "Now you must go," she said. "Poor Abby, shivering in her birth this night, imagining that you are here, that we are being highly imprudent, and wondering whether she ought to get off at the next station."

"In her good cotton nightgown?"

"How did you guess?"

"You just know she wears them," he quoted solemnly, and they laughed.

Walking through the living room she said, "It is empty."

"Sofa and all?"

"A house is no good, it is just a house, or an apartment or a hotel room or a cold-water flat, and not a home, without a man in it!"

"There you go again," he said. "But now you will have time to do some planning for yourself."

She nodded and he smiled. "Good night, Liza," he said, and took her hand. "Let me know what you decide. Show me, if you wish, the blueprint."

Annual Rotaryann Yule Dinner Meeting Is Held In Episcopal Parish House

Boys' School Cleric Heard

Rotarians and their ladies attended the annual Rotaryann Christmas dinner held in St. Philip's Episcopal church parish house Thursday evening.

Tables were decorated with red and white candles and Christmas greens. The lighted Christmas tree under which gifts were placed was on the stage.

Guest speaker for the occasion was the Rev. Charles L. Harrison, chaplain in Boys Industrial School, Lancaster. A third generation Methodist minister, he is president of the National Chaplains' Association and a member of Board of Methodist Chaplains, Washington D. C.

Rev. Mr. Harrison began his address in a humorous vein, but later launched into a serious talk on "Faith and Fear." He cited the faith of the wise men in following the star as an example of faith conquering fear.

Harrison only touched on his work in the industrial school which he said was the largest school of its kind in the United States. It provides a home for more than 700 boys.

Of them, Harrison said, "they are unstable emotionally in an unstable world. It is our job there to quiet their fears aroused by the unstable atmosphere in which they have lived. They must learn to take things as they come."

Karl Herrmann led the Christmas carols with Mrs. Herrmann, Rotary pianist, accompanying them.

The exchange of gifts caused considerable amusement with guest speaker, Harrison, a Kiwanis club member, receiving an engagement book reminding him to come to Rotary luncheon each Thursday.

In charge of dinner arrangements were Frank Barnhill Jr., assisted by Mrs. Barnhill, William Defenbaugh, Earl Smith and Charles Walters.

Stairway in the home of Mrs. William Whitehead of Ashville was festooned with cedar studded with Christmas tree balls when she entertained Ashville Garden Club Thursday evening.

Gifts were placed under a lighted Christmas tree. Mantles were decorated with evergreens and Christmas candles.

Mrs. C. E. Mahaffey became president when William Fisher resigned the post because of ill health.

Miss Nelle Oesterle, program director, was in charge of the Christmas entertainment that followed the business session.

Mary Anne Noecker sang Mozart's "Lullaby." Joy Trone's solos included "Away in the Manger" and "Jolly Old St. Nick." Both girls were accompanied by Mrs. Joseph Peters.

Other musical numbers were presented by Mrs. Warren Bastian who sang, "Lo, A Flower e're Blooming" and "Under the Stars."

Presiding at the dining table centered with red roses and Christmas candles were Mrs. Ralph Hosler and Mrs. Mahaffey.

Gifts were brought for an exchange among members and also for Circleville Home and Hospital.

Holy Name Society Party Attracts 300

About 300 guests were present when Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Catholic church sponsored a Christmas party for the entire parish Wednesday evening.

St. Joseph's recreational center was decorated with Christmas greens and a lighted Christmas tree for the pot luck dinner. The weekly Novena in the church preceded the party.

Christmas carols directed by Ed Frericks were sung. Accompanist was Adrian Merriman. The appearance of Santa Claus was a climax to the affair.

Winners of a poster contest were announced. Peggy Mader was first place winner in class one for the most original poster; Nancy Thomas came second with the best looking poster in the class and Melody Shea received third place for the best colored.

In class two, Frieda Mader won first place for the most original poster; Susan Stockien placed second for the best looking poster and Sharon Hedges won third place for the best colored.

In class three, Phyllis Butt was first place winner with the most original; Rita Ann Howell second place winner with the best looking poster and Judy Goeller with the best colored.

James P. Shea, president of Holy Name Society, had appointed Dr. Joe Goeller general chairman. Assisting Dr. Goeller were Bernard Mogan, Stanley Stevens, Bill Good Jr., Donald Goeller, Frericks and Merriman.

The Altar Society was responsible for dinner arrangements.

Miss Higman's Marriage Told

Miss Judith La Verne Higman of Williamsport and Richard Gene Speakman of New Holland were married Tuesday evening in Richmond, Ind. The Rev. John H. Carnes performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Martin of Clarksburg who accompanied the couple to Indiana.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Higman of Williamsport. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pearl A. Speakman of New Holland.

The bride wore a beige dress with brown accessories while Mrs. Martin was attired in gray with green accessories.

The new Mrs. Speakman is a graduate of Perry Township high school and an employee of First National Bank. The bridegroom, graduate of Clarksburg high school, is in the armed service.

Woman Of The Week

Mrs. George Troutman, Choir Director, Teacher, Church Worker

Mrs. George Troutman, "Woman of the Week" has a particular talent for "filling in" according to members of Trinity Lutheran church where her husband is pastor. "Wherever there's a need, whether it's the Sunday school, or a woman's organization or a kitchen committee Mrs. Troutman's there to help out" church women say.

A major portion of Mrs. Troutman's time is given to the organizations in her husband's church.

Mrs. Troutman is the mother of three children, Ruth, Joyce and George but she still manages to accept outside responsibilities, to fill in until the right person comes along to take over. Then she relinquishes the jobs only, it appears, to assume responsibility in some other line.

For a good many years Mrs. Troutman directed both the junior choir and the children's choir in the church. Mrs. Dudley Carpenter now has taken over the younger singers.

Mrs. Troutman taught a class of teen-age youngsters. She instituted a series of lessons starting with Genesis and going through the Bible. She wanted her pupils to have some idea of the Bible as a whole. When Intern Ray Kibler arrived in Circleville, Mrs. Troutman turned the work over to him and he has gone on with the series.

Mrs. Troutman, however, has taken a new class of 15 or 20 youngsters just promoted into the junior department.

Mrs. Troutman, a gifted musician, was instrumental in creating the existing choir.

One of her former choir members said of Mrs. Troutman, "She gets along with young people. She makes them work without getting cross. She's patient. And she's always looking out for kids with good voices. When she spots one, he gets every chance."

Mrs. Troutman is an active member in the senior church choir. Hers is a mezzo soprano voice. She frequently sings at the weddings held in the church. She sings at occasional funerals.

Mrs. Troutman takes an active part in women's organizations of the church. She is the newly elected president of Von Bora Society and she is a past president of Lutheran Ladies Society.

Mrs. Troutman is the former Vera Walters. Her parents used to live near the village of Lockbourne. A teacher, Miss Minnie B. Shane, was the first to recognize Vera Walters' talent for music. Through her encouragement Mrs. Troutman became seriously interested in music.

The Walters family moved to Circleville when Vera was still in high school. She is a graduate of Circleville high school.

She received her degree from Wittenberg College and attended Ohio State University.

She took music lessons from Ellis Snyder of Capital University when he taught in Circleville many years ago.

The fact that she grew up in a family with seven brothers and sisters perhaps accounts for the fact that she knows how to cooperate. The fact that Mrs. Troutman taught school for about eight years may have something to do with the fact that she likes children and gets along well with teen agers. Mrs. Troutman occasionally substitutes in the schools when Circleville is hard pressed for teachers.

If Mrs. Troutman will call at Brehmer Greenhouse there will be a floral tribute awaiting her as "Woman of the Week".

100 Persons Attend Local PTA Meeting

Over 100 persons were present for the covered dish dinner of Circleville Parent-Teacher Association held in high school social rooms Thursday evening.

Negro spirituals were sung by guest choir from Second Baptist church as the main feature of entertainment.

Group singing of Christmas carols was led by Dr. Richard Samuel. Mrs. Carl Snider was accompanist.

Dr. Samuel, association president, conducted the meeting at which a report of the health committee, headed by Mrs. Walter Heine, was given. Needed medical care for underprivileged children will begin immediately. It was also reported that shoes had been purchased for school children from the underprivileged children's fund.

Tarlton Youth To Aid Church

New blinds for basement windows will be donated by Young People's class of Tarlton Methodist church. Members voted to purchase the blinds when they met recently for their monthly session. Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Ricketts were hosts for the evening.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 29 with a covered dish supper. Mrs. Richard Rhymer will present the program.

Card of Thanks

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to express our deepest appreciation to Rev. Troutman, William Strehle, relatives, friends, neighbors and the Mader Funeral Home who assisted us following the death of our beloved husband and daddy, the late Loring E. Hulse.

Through the valley of the shadow Down the road we all must tread, The one we love has gone before us And now he waits for us ahead. May we meet this sorrow bravely Knowing on some distant day We will be again united With the one who is away. Greatly missed by widow and daughter.

CARD OF THANKS
We sincerely appreciate the many kindnesses shown us during the illness and after the death of our beloved father, the late Harley Hedman. We thank Dr. V. D. Kerns and Mr. Deffenbaugh for their efficient services. Rev. Brown for his consoling words, the secular Baptist Church Choir and relatives and friends and also those who sent flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Weaver

Tigers Suffer 3rd Loss As Lions Win By 56-34

Circleville's Red and Black basketball team lost its third game in as many starts Friday night when Washington's Blue Lions invaded here.

The Washington courtmen played for keeps in the contest, sending the Tigers to the showers on the south end of a 56-34 margin.

For Washington, one of the leading contenders in this year's South Central Ohio League pennant chase, it was the second loop victory under its belt.

Circleville, winner of last year's SCOL, toga and boasting a 15-3 record for the season, was handed the loss in its first defense of its crown this season.

THE STARTING Tiger quintet was skittering in the opening minutes of play and spotted the invading Lions a 15-1 advantage before Tiger Coach Dick West rang the gong for a change.

floor to represent the starting five in the contest.

The Circleville cheering was rewarded during the next few minutes of play when Heise unlimbered his shooting eye to sink three straight set shots and nab three out of four free throws.

Gillis added two points to the tally during the rally as the Tigers zoomed from the 15-1 deficit to 15-9, 16-11, 18-13, 20-15 and finally 22-16 as the period ended. Jerry Rooney was added to the lineup to open the third quarter and scored on a jump shot to give the CHS'ers their closest approach to the lead of the game at 22-18.

WASHINGTON rallied on a quick succession of shots during the next few minutes of play to run the score to 31-20 before Heise bucketed a push shot. Both teams scored almost alternately during the remainder of the period, with Washington leading 41-28 at the period end.

The Washington outfit completely dominated the play in the final canto of the game as the starting quintet was sent in to relieve the subs, who had sagged after the strenuous game.

Circleville's reserve team lost a thriller in the preliminary tilt when the Washington juniors handed them a 38-37 loss.

Both teams were equal in scoring during the first canto, with the score deadlocked at 7-7. Washington reservists assumed the lead at the half, however, by a 19-15 margin, and at the three-quarter mark held a 30-27 lead.

Circleville's subs knotted the score at 33-33 with less than five minutes to play in the final stanza, and then jumped into the lead only to lose out in the final minutes of play.

Lanky Clarence Boyd was the spearhead of attack for the CHS reservists in the tilt, netting a total of 21 points. Washington was paced by Jack Rittig, who marked a total of 17 points.

Circleville will travel to Chillicothe Saturday night for its fourth test of the season. The reserve tilt is slated to begin at
